Trade and Investment in the Czech Republic

The Czech Republic is a Parliamentary democracy and one of the most advanced Central & Eastern European (CEE) countries. An open investment climate is a key element of the Czech Republic's economy with its economic policies being consistent. The Czech Republic, which joined the European Union in 2004, is recognized as the optimal business environment from which to better serve international customers. This is a result of several factors, the most notable being the sustained enhancements to the business environment implemented by the Czech government and the ability of the country's pre-eminent natural resources, intellectual capital, to respond to the needs of knowledge-based and innovation-driven businesses. The Czech Republic was the first CEE country to be admitted into the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD). The country is a member of NATO and is fully integrated into other international organisations such as the World Trade Organization (WTO), International Monetary Fund (IMF) and European Bank for Reconstruction and Development (EBRD). The country has maintained a consistent growth rate hovering around 2.5 % over the past couple of years, and has one of the lowest unemployment rates in the region of around 2%. The Czech koruna is fully convertible and the country's strong and independent central bank (the Czech National Bank) has maintained an extraordinary degree of currency stability since 1991. Czech legislation is in accordance with the regulations of the European Union. Furthermore, Czech commercial, accounting and bankruptcy laws are compatible with western standards. Under Czech law, foreign and domestic entities are treated identically in all areas, from protection of property rights to investment incentives. The Czech Republic has attracted a large amount of foreign direct investment (FDI) since 1990, making it one of the most successful CEE countries in terms of FDI per capita. The stock of FDI in the country totalled US$ 164.200 billion as per the latest figures.
